and there's the sound of the blues played and sung by young men and women with little more than a guitar in their hands and a dream in their hearts august wilson's Seven Guitars is the sixth chapter in his continuing theatrical saga that explores the hope heartbreak and heritage of the african american experience in the twentieth century the story follows a small group of friends who gather following the untimely death of floyd schoolboy barton a local blues guitarist on the edge of stardom together they reminisce about his short life and discover the unspoken passions and undying spirit that live within each of them

academic paper from the year 2006 in the subject american studies literature grade a southern illinois university carbondale department of english course english drama august wilson language english abstract the unreliable black musician floyd barton has great plans to go to chicago and make more records trying to get his reluctant girlfriend vera to accompany him however he commits the mistake of robbing a loan office and burying the money in the yard which is witnessed by his lunatic tubercular friend king hedley who eventually kills him with his machete to gain possession of the money which in his belief was destined to him by the legendary buddy bolden according to his late father's legendary promise this drama deals with kings and a king to be born it is a prophesy in this regard the plot is rolled up backwards first the audience observes a circle of friends after the funeral feast for one group member floyd barton then the setting is a couple of days before his publicly unresolved murder and some components of the rising action are a discussion of the men whether knives or revolvers are better for killing 48 49 a boxing fight of joe louis witnessed on the radio 57 58 young sensual and pregnant ruby arriving quite unannounced to stay at her aunt louise's house 61 hedley killing an annoying rooster 69 hedley receiving his machete 92 93 ruby giving herself to old sick hedley out of mercy 95 poochie getting shot when robbing a loan office 101 102 vera giving in to accompany floyd to chigaco 103 floyd and his band members and friends coming back from the blue goose where they had an exceptionally well received gig 106 and floyd's burying the money from his loan office robbery being discovered by canewell 107 108 the climax is floyd being threatened by hedley with his machete to give him his money 109 but the audience is not absolutely certain that he gets killed the falling action plays after the funeral again and brings the solution to the murder case canewell is the only witness that hedley is in the possession of floyd's money which he allegedly received by the mysterious buddy bolden 112 the theme of this drama is a persiflage about how the american dream of an aspiring young black musician with only one hit record so far is shattered because the protagonist is corrupted and eventually killed by an insane man in fulfillment of the oracle of the latter's mythical african father in his famous 1996 address at the theater communication group s biennial conference at princeton university titled the ground on which i stand august wilson attacked colorblind casting stating that it is nothing more than a tool of western imperialism three years later in 1999 wilson published king hedley ii a tragedy which traces the arc of the eponymous king as he struggles to make a place for himself and his family within the urban wreck of deindustrialized pittsburgh interestingly this tragedy bears several poignant similarities to one of the seminal tragedies of the western tradition sophocles oedipus tyrannus i contend that king hedley ii is a reception of oedipus tyrannus that august wilson has pulled sophocles work through the millennia into the specific context of pittsburgh s hill district in 1985 the aims of this paper are twofold first i will unpack the ways in which august wilson transforms sophocles tragedy and redefines the dramatic components of oedipus rex in a way that is aligned with his artistic vision second i will be examining how this act of transformation is able to challenge the monolithic tradition of western dramaturgy that wilson both worked inside of and strove to escape how through an act of reception wilson destabilizes the privileged tradition of western dramaturgy and claims equal ground for black theater in america wilson states that the term black or african american not only denotes race it denotes condition and carries with it the vestige of slavery and the social segregation and abuse of opportunity so vivid in our memory if the term black or african american denotes condition why is sophocles tragedy a site visited by wilson to explore that condition there is a tragedy occurring in the hill district in 1985 equal of the tragedy in thebes complete with a plague scarred heroes wise prophets brilliant and frustrated queens and harrowing ritual sacrifice only the tragedy in the hill district is not put into motion by oracular prophecy but by the smothering force of racism author s abstract challenging the standard portrayals of black men in african american literature from frederick douglass to the present the preoccupation of black writers with manhood and masculinity is a constant black manhood in james baldwin ernest j gaines and august wilson explores how in their own work three major african american writers contest classic portrayals of black men in earlier literature from slave narratives through the great novels of richard wright and ralph ellison keith clark examines short stories novels and plays by baldwin gaines and wilson arguing that since the 1950s the three have interrupted and radically dismantled the constricting literary depictions of black men who equate selfhood with victimization isolation and patriarchy instead they have reimagined black men whose identity is grounded in community camaraderie and intimacy delivering original and startling insights this book will appeal to scholars and students of african american literature gender studies and narratology
